That is why The Angkor Wat is facing West instead as the most Hindu temple facing east all over the world.

(We have to mind that to enter the third enclosure up to the centre tower of the Five towers of Angkor Wat, especially the ladies are not allowed with sleeveless top clothes. Since on those days the third enclosure used only by The King Suryavarma II , who built this Angkor Wat, the Kampucheans still respect him and for that reasonnot allowing the ladies not covered the upper body fully covered by proper clothes) mother Jayalakshmi.

Ta Prohm is the largest monument in the Angkor Complex which included 260 statues of Gods, 39 Towers with Pinnacles and 566 groups of residences. The center of the monuments is reached by a series of towers connected with passages. This arrangement forms a sort of scared way into the heart of the monument.

Ta Prohm is the undisputed capital of the kingdom of the Trees. Shrouded in dense jungle the temple of Ta Prohm is ethereal in aspect and conjures up a romantic aura. Fig, Banyan and KAPOK TREES SPREAD THEIR GIGANTIC ROOTS OVER STONES, PROBING WALLS and terraces apart, as their branches and leaves intertwine to form a roof over the structures.

11.30 am : Visiting the Bayon Temple:

The Bayon is located in the center of the city of Angkor Thom. Bayon was built in late 12th century to early 13th century by the King Jayavarman VII dedicated to Buddhism. Even After this was known, The Bayon was erroneously connected with the city of Yasovarman I and thus dated to the ninth century. A pediment found in 1925 depicting an Avalokitesvara identified the Bayon as a Buddhist Temple. This Discovery moved the date of the monument ahead some 300 years to the late twelfth century.

Just 5 cm under the water's surface over 1000 small carvings are etched into the sandstone riverbed. The waters are regarded as holy, given that Jayavarman II chose to bathe in the river, and had the river diverted so that the stone bed could be carved. Carvings include a stone representation of the Hindu god Vishnu lying on his serpent Ananta, with his wife Lakshmi at his feet. A lotus flower protrudes from his navel bearing the god Brahma. The river then ends with two waterfalls and which the Cambodians think as Holy Waterfalls
